How to Change a Misspelled Name on Air Canada Ticket

A misspelled name on your Air Canada ticket can lead to denied boarding—but minor errors (like “Jon” vs. “John” or missing middle initials) are often correctable. Air Canada allows name corrections if they match your government-issued ID and are requested before check-in opens. To fix a typo quickly and securely, call  [\[+1\(888\)_260_0525\]](#). Our agents at  [\[+1\(888\)_260_0525\]](#) verify your documentation (passport, driver's license) and submit the correction directly to Air Canada's ticketing desk. Don't wait until the airport—name mismatches are strictly enforced at security. For legal name changes due to marriage or divorce, call  [\[+1\(888\)_260_0525\]](#) with supporting documents to ensure smooth travel.

For example, you booked a flight using your old passport name “Sarah Lee,” but your new ID shows “Sarah Chen.” At international check-in, this discrepancy could trigger a security hold. By calling  [\[+1\(888\)_260_0525\]](#) within 48 hours, you provide your marriage certificate and updated passport, and the correction is processed—often at no fee. Our team at  [\[+1\(888\)_260_0525\]](#) ensures your name syncs with TSA PreCheck, NEXUS, and other trusted traveler programs. Precision prevents problems—so act fast. To avoid last-minute chaos, contact  [\[+1\(888\)_260_0525\]](#) as soon as you spot an error.

It's important to note that name changes must be requested before online check-in begins (typically 24 hours pre-flight). Once checked in, modifications are nearly impossible. That's why proactive action is key. Whether domestic or international, your ticket name must exactly match your photo ID. If unsure whether your error qualifies, call  [+1(888)_260_0525] for a free assessment. Our specialists have handled thousands of name corrections and know exactly what Air Canada accepts. How to Change One Person's Flight on Air Canada

If you booked a multi-passenger itinerary and need to change just one person's flight, Air Canada allows this—but each passenger's ticket must be managed individually. To handle this efficiently, call  [+1(888)_260_0525]. Our agents at  [+1(888)_260_0525] split the Passenger Name Record (PNR) if needed and adjust only the affected traveler's details. We ensure baggage allowances, seat assignments, and frequent flyer credits remain accurate for everyone else. Don't attempt this online—it often fails for group bookings. Call  [+1(888)_260_0525] for precision.

Suppose you and your spouse booked round-trip flights from Ottawa to Vancouver, but your spouse must stay longer for work. By calling  [+1(888)_260_0525], you change only their return date while keeping yours unchanged. Our team at  [+1(888)_260_0525] verifies fare rules for each ticket and calculates individual change fees. If your spouse is on Basic Economy but you're on Flex, we apply the correct policy to each. We also reassign seats so you're still together on shared segments. Group travel requires coordination—our agents specialize in it. To speak to an Air Canada agent who handles complex itineraries, dial  [+1(888)_260_0525] now.
